9 Open-Source Software Development

Author and maintainer of free (libre) and open-source source software (see my GitHub profile at https://github.com/gagolews/), e.g.,:

O1. stringi (https://stringi.gagolewski.com/) – text/natural language processing; one of the most often downloaded R packages (over 100,000,000 downloads)
O2. genieclust (https://genieclust.gagolewski.com/) – Python and R implementation of my fast and robust Genie hierarchical clustering algorithm
O3. clustering-benchmarks (https://clustering-benchmarks.gagolewski.com/) – A framework for benchmarking clustering algorithms (including a package for Python)
O4. deadwood (https://deadwood.gagolewski.com/) – Outlier detection via trimming of mutual reachability minimum spanning trees in R and Python
O5. lumbermark (https://lumbermark.gagolewski.com/) – Clustering via chopping up mutual reachability minimum spanning trees in R and Python
O6. quitefastmst (https://quitefastmst.gagolewski.com/) – Euclidean and mutual reachability minimum spanning trees in R and Python
O7. stringx (https://stringx.gagolewski.com/) – drop-in replacements for base R string functions powered by stringi
O8. realtest (https://realtest.gagolewski.com/) – a framework for unit testing for realistic minimalists, where we distinguish between expected, acceptable, current, fallback, ideal, or regressive behaviour; it can also be used for monitoring other software projects for changes

O9. FuzzyNumbers (http://cran.r-project.org/package=FuzzyNumbers) – tools to deal with fuzzy numbers in R

O10. TurtleGraphics (http://cran.r-project.org/package=TurtleGraphics) – learn R programming while having a jolly time!
